About the client
Faerch is a global leader in rigid food packaging with over 50 years of experience in producing innovative, high-quality packaging for ready meals, fresh meat and food-to-go. They're also at the forefront of the sustainability trend, offering their customers a range of recyclable food packing options. Their approach is creative and cutting-edge, employing technology-driven solutions to support business growth.

Working within an extremely busy manufacturing environment, Faerch need to account for a full spectrum of health and safety risks, from day-to-day issues such as manual handling and slips, trips and falls, to more specialist areas such as legionella risks.

HEALTH AND SAFETY AT FAERCH

Faerch is fully committed to ensuring the safety of its workforce, contractors, visitors, suppliers and customers. Faerch adopts both a national and regional strategic approach to health and safety, ensuring high standards are maintained across all operations.

The Challenge at Faerch

Outgrowing the 'traditional packaging' of paper-based systems

Like many companies in the sector, Faerch used a paper-based system to administer health, safety and quality processes. This meant the team put a lot of time into admin and manual reporting tasks.

CONTINUED BUSINESS GROWTH MEANT THERE WAS A PRESSING NEED FOR A MORE EFFICIENT AND ACCESSIBLE SYSTEM.

We have a great health and safety culture here, but we will never rest to improve it even further. It is all about improvement- continuous improvement and never resting on our laurels.

We want to raise the bar. I think Assure is really driving that for us.

What Faerch Wanted

To put health, safety and quality into the hands of its employees

Faerch sought a technology solution that would consolidate everything health and safety in one place; a one-stop-shop for all their health, safety and quality management. They required one central, accessible system which would improve resource efficiencies and help drive cost savings.

Across operations, the goal was to:

- 01 Improve visibility
- 02 Deepen engagement
- 03 Support a proactive culture
- 04 Harness everyday mobile technology
- 05 Promote positive internal behaviours

Faerch and Assure: A Recipe for Success

With Evox's health and safety software solution, Assure, Faerch were provided with a flexible, efficient and accessible way of managing health, safety and quality.

OUTCOMES

Identifying, reducing and preventing hazards on a wider scale

Evotix implemented Assure, their flexible health and safety software to support Faerch to the fullest extent.

Assure was configured to meet local needs within wider organisational processes, including the inclusion of the Faerch logo, the creation of a bespoke inspection checklist and management of user-access permissions.

01

With a mobile-first approach, Assure eliminated the need to duplicate/transcribe entries.

02

Employees can easily capture and record real-time information in one central place and complete 24/7 'paperless' audits, inspections and assessments.

03

Existing processes are integrated and central teams have 360-degree visibility of health, safety and quality performance.

04

Actions can be delegated locally and tracked through to completion.

05

Assure has eliminated manual processes and administration, saving Faerch the equivalent of 39 days per month.

06

As a result, Faerch has improved their claim defensibility and reduced the number of pay-outs and 'down-time' spent on related investigations.

FAERCH AND ASSURE TOGETHER

Manufacturing a proactive culture

Evotix supports Faerch in pursuing better engagement and participation across its workforce by making health and safety widely accessible

Everyone from the executive team to individuals on the shop floor can view and report information via a desktop, laptop or mobile device.

Accessibility and transparency are key

Faerch encourages employees to view health and safety as part of their daily role by providing an intuitive, straightforward way to acquire health and safety data. This has sparked a boost in employee engagement with a resulting increase in the quality and volume of data captured across the business.

The Insights+ Business Intelligence functionality allows Faerch to examine the data, identify trends and track leading indicators

These insights are being used to communicate 'lessons learned' and to also share best practices across the workforce. All staff are included in this ongoing dialogue.

Admin time has been cut down drastically

This time is now spent actively managing health and safety and focusing attention on leading indicators.
