Anabas specialises in delivering facilities management (FM) services to corporate office occupiers across the UK. Operating within the financial, legal, technology and pharmaceutical sectors, they partner with some of the world's leading brands.

Anabas self-delivers Total FM solutions, including cleaning, security, reception and mechanical & electrical maintenance.

Given the nature of Anabas' operations, their workforce is exposed to an array of hazards across various sites.

To ensure the safety of their employees, they needed a comprehensive solution that would simplify workplace inspections, hazard identification and incident reporting.

Evotix's software has revolutionized Anabas' health and safety procedures by empowering employees to perform risk assessments seamlessly and providing senior management with clear, actionable data.

Anabas has harnessed Evotix's configurability to promote active engagement with health and safety practices.

They've implemented innovative strategies, including the strategic placement of QR code-enabled posters throughout the workplace.

These QR codes empower employees to report incidents swiftly from any device, even on the move.

Challenges Faced

Working across a multitude of sites, Anabas' employees are vulnerable to a variety of hazards – including slips, trips and falls and potentially being struck by moving objects or vehicles.

To keep everyone safe, Anabas knew they needed to regularly assess risks at each site. However, the old way of doing things involved a lot of paperwork, making simple changes a hassle.

Anabas sought a more streamlined approach, with ready-made templates for assessments that could be easily tweaked.

They also wanted a system that would simplify inspections of new sites and help their QHSE manager stay on top of emerging issues.

Additionally, Anabas aimed to foster a culture where everyone proactively looked out for potential dangers.

Starting with Evotix

Upon joining Anabas in February 2022, Richard Oldham, QHSE Manager, discovered that Evotix's system was already in place.

His role primarily involved learning the system and then teaching it to various account managers.

With Evotix, Richard introduced features such as the 'try it' and 'click it' functions that enables teams to view tutorials on how to complete a task, as they're carrying it out.

We set up Square One training to teach me the basics. I have the recordings and to be able to come back and have a one-to-one session where we could ask questions was really helpful."

Richard Oldham,
QHSE Manager

It's enabling people to learn the system at their own pace and in their own way, whether it's by watching a video or viewing a slide show. It's fantastic."

With Evotix

Evotix equips Anabas with the tools needed to meet its health and safety requirements by enabling its team to easily track accidents and incidents. Since Anabas' adoption of Evotix, Richard has observed a significant uptick in accident reporting.

Since February 2020, we've reported a total of 282 incidents

and identified

670 hazards

We're delighted with our usage rates," shares Richard.

This was instrumental in securing the client's commitment to Evotix for health and safety support.

And if a team member gets stuck using the system? One of Evotix's greatest strengths is the fact users can have multiple tabs open simultaneously – meaning users can have a help tab open while seamlessly completing their tasks.

Anabas has reflected that Evotix's configurability was exceptional, even though the internal resource required was underestimated initially.

Since implementation, Anabas has shared they feel the ongoing support has been incredible, helpful and pivotal to their road to success.

One of the system's standout features is its adaptability, allowing employees to generate reports that can be efficiently shared with senior management and clients, resulting in substantial time savings.

Access to data and streamlined board reporting is simplified:

It's very useful for data analysis and understanding trends," says Richard.

"From a month-end performance and report generation standpoint, it's been exceptionally valuable."

The hazard spotting tool sets the right scene. It pushes people to look out for danger before they carry out the task. This tool is one of the greatest strengths of Evotix."

The Outcome

Streamlining Inspections, Reporting and Audits

Anabas has made significant strides in streamlining their inspection, reporting and audit processes, rendering health and safety practices more accessible and efficient.

"We created inspection templates that can be easily adjusted and we introduced QR codes to facilitate swift, on-the-go reporting," says Richard.

In the event of a near miss report pinpointing a potential hazard, Anabas adopted a proactive approach, using these instances as valuable teaching moments:

"If a near-miss report highlights a potential hazard, we use these opportunities to educate the wider business, ensuring a better understanding of the difference between near-misses and actual hazards. It fosters a culture of safety," says Richard.

With Evotix's support, Anabas streamlined their monthly reporting process, simplifying data analysis and presenting it to senior management promptly.

Configurability and ongoing learning

Leveraging the system's configurability, Anabas introduced a workplace compliance audit tool. This innovative tool empowers team members to become internal auditors, guiding them through the creation of scheduled and ad-hoc tasks, enabling them to simultaneously learn the system while efficiently conducting audits.

"We are continually exploring how to use the system for training and I'm starting to think about how I can create tools for people to utilise.

It's only limited to what my imagination can come up with," says Richard.

Becoming self-sufficient with Evtix's report

When it comes to support from Evtix, nothing feels too little for the team at Anabas to ask. "Everyone at Evtix has been really helpful & polite and have worked with me to find a resolution no matter what the issue."

With Evtix's steadfast support, Anabas has enhanced their understanding of the system, promoting a culture of self-sufficiency.

"As learning increases, the need for support naturally reduces. However, we greatly appreciate the support that got us to this stage."

Summing up Anabas' experience with Evtix, Richard reveals that the company's success has even prompted recommendations to others in the health and safety industry.

Reflecting on the significant positive impact the partnership has had on their business, Richard shares his final thoughts:

I've really come to appreciate what a good one-stop-shop Evtix can be.

I like it so much I've already promoted it to another person in the health and safety space."
